THANKSGIVING DAY. A PROCLAMATION.

By the president of the United States America: America:

At no period in their history since the United States became a nation has this people had abundant and so universal reasons for joy and gratitude for the favor o Almighty God, or been subject to so pro-found an obligation to give thanks to H laving kindness and bumbly to implore Hi lowing kindness and bumbly to implie it continued care and protection. Health width and prosperity throughout all our boders; peace, honor and friendship with all the world; firm and faithful adhe. we the great body of our population to th ciples of liberty and justice which have made our greatness as a nation and to the wie institutions an frame of government an which will perpetuate it s clety, which will respetuate For all these let the thanks of a har noited people with one voice ascend in a wout homage to the giver of all good. further more recommend that on Thursda the 25th of November next, the people of the contract of me t at their respective places of worsh to make the gknowledgment of His bout ties and His protection, and to offer Kim prayer for their continuance, witness whereof I have hereunto set n hand and caused the seal of the Units tates to be affixed. Done at the city Washington, this thirty first day of Oct her, in the year of our Lord one thousan eight hundred and eighty, and of the inde-pendence of the United States the or idred and fifth.
